'We are not women; we are gods.' is a group exhibition of 2D and 3D works that capture the lyrical genius of Halsey's words, I am not a legend; I'm a fraud. We want this life to mean much more, blink, blink, flash, the old life's gone, the blinds pulled back to a bright new dawn - a life worth it to live at what cost of we were made a name, all for everlasting fame. In our lives, we are the conduits where time collides and societal ideas of women change. As artists, we present these changes in ways others can't – change, endings, and new beginnings.
